Owing to the limited space in the warerogus, the Kennard company will be forced to reduce stock before the first removal. For this purpose, it will inaugurate this week the greatest cut-price sale of carpets and curtains and rugs that has ever been seen in the city of St. Louis.

The firm wishes to announce in particular that every article of its stock will be reduced in price, and that at the least there will be exhibited at the sale a quarter of a million dollars' worth of rugs and carpets. This is beyond question the largest amount of such stock that has ever been offered at one time in the West—even in the United States.

Of especial interest to St. Louisans will be the sale of Oriental rugs. All of these were selected with reference to the best retail trade of this city, yet all are to be knifed as if they were undestrable. one Man Saved United for World's FAIR AMENDMENTS.

Every Organized Interest in the City Offers Support for the Amendments.

Great Quantities of Literature Sent Out-Entire State Interested in Securing Aid for the Celebration.

Amendments 4 and 5, which are to be voted on at the approaching election, were kept prominently before the voters of St Louis last week, and the campaign is to be kept up until the close of the polls. Indications are not only for an over whelming majority for the amendments but for a practically unanimous vote in their favor in most of the wards.

Up to date every organized interest in the city has offered its support to the amendment-labor unions and mercantile bodies alike-and not a single dissenting voice has been raised.

The wholesale grocers reported last week that their city travelers found in pertions of the South End a misapprehension as to the intent and effect of the amendments. In order to offset this, appropriate litera-ture, printed in English and German, was promptly distributed, and it is believed that ie southern wards will vote right on these matters.

The city work generally is in excellent condition. The leaders of both the political parties are vying with each other in their efforts to help the cause of the Fair and to secure a practically unanimous vote. The Fair executive officers came in contact last week with a large majority of the judges, clerks and precinct committeemen of both parties, and nothing could possibly have parties, and nothing could possibly have been more encouraging than the reports all these gentlemen made as to the senti-ment in their localities. There is a great demand at the office for literature and for hangers. Efforts are be-ing made to limit the distribution where it will be used, and a great bulk of the mat-ter is passing into the hands of friends of the cause, who apply for it. Firms or inthe cause, who apply for it. Firms or in-dividuals wishing hangers or other matter and able to use it or distribute it to ad-vantage may telephone their instructions to Secretary James Cox, who can be reached by either of the Business Men's League or Mercantile Club telephones. Employers' Suggestion.

Firms employing large forces are arranging to put slips in pay envelopes, reminding recipients of the importance of voiling "Yes" on both the fourth and fifth amendrecipients of the Importance of voting "Yes" on both the fourth and fifth amendments. Some of this matter is being furnished by the office, but several firms are preparing a direct appeal to their own em-ployes. One of the largest retail houses in the city prepared and is distributing among its army of employes the following points address:

address;

VOTE FOR THE WORLD'S FAIR.

White this store has no desire to influence your action on any of the political issues, it is undoubtedly to our nutual advantage that the World's Fair amendments he carried at the coming election, and we request you to vote for them as shown below." J. Kennard & Sons Make Deep Cuts
Before Removal.

The J. Kennard & Sons Carpet Company makes to-day its first announcement of its contemplated removel to its warehouse, Nos. 412 and 414 North Fourth street, pending the completion of a new store, which will occupy the entire block on Fourth street from Washington avenue to St. Charles street, the old Armory Hall site. Work on the new building, fronting ninety feet on Washington avenue and 119 feet on Et. Charles street, will begin January, in order that the firm may be able to move in the city will be posted concerning the amendments, and the absolute necessity of their being carried by a large majority. Mr. O'Meara, chairman of the special Precinct Committee, was hard at work restrict Committee, was har

The sentiment in the State appears to b almost as unanimous as in the city. By every mail requests come from cities and townships, asking for additional literature in order that a good vote can be got out for the Fair. The large cities are being specially attended to, and with the State press a practical unit on the subject, it is believed that both amendments will carry by a good majority outside St. Louis.
St. Louis has a bost of friends among the Postmasters who attended the convention

here early in the year, and many of these in writing for literature and equipment make very pleasant allusions to their visit to the city, and to the fact that they then voted for the Fair, and have seen no recson to change their policy. Practically fore the present week is out. Notices will be posted at every polling place and a very large number of post offices and country atores.

The question of the effect of the amend ments upon taxation is naturally an important one. The statement of the president of the Board of Assessors, Mr. A. H. Frederick, as to the $5,009,000 bond issue dent of the Board of Assessors, Mr. A. H. Frederick, as to the $5,09,090 bond issue causing no increase in city taxes, has proved of immense value in the campaign. The statement which Mr. Frederick obtained from Auditor Selbert that the passage of the fifth amendment will not affect State taxes is even more important. Mr. Selbert shows that the present rate of State taxation will afford ample funds to pay the interest on the State debt, to reduce the State debt more rapidly than called for by the Constitution, and also to furnish the $1,096,690.60 to be appropriated from the debt and interest sinking fund for a World's Fair exhibit. It will be remembered that Missouri took some of the highest premiums at the Chicago Exposition and that a liberal appropriation was made by the State out of current revenue for a Missouri exhibit. It is now certain that the Fair will be held, and under no circumstances could the State afford to contemplate an international exposition in its largest city, with every State and Territory in the Louisiana Purchase represented, except its own. Several speakers are calling attention to this fact in their arguments and making it clear: First, that there will be a World's Fair in St. Louis in 1997, second, that Missouri will undoubtedly be adequately represented thereat; third, that the passage of the fifth amendment will enable that exhibit to be made without any additional taxation; and fourth, that there is no other practicable way of baving a State exhibit without encroaching upon current revenue.

St. Louis Folks, Young and Old Preparing to Observe This Time-Honored Festival.

GHOST PARTIES AND GAMES.

New Amusements Will Be Tried. but Fortune Telling and the Like Still Lead in Popular Favor.

Next Wednesday night Is the last Halloween of the Nineteenth Century. For a few brief hours the veil which hides the future will be drawn aside by the hand of mystery, and those whom the witches love will be permitted to peep into the book of the coming cycle of time and read the fate in store for them. St. Louis young folks are preparing with unusual interest for the mysticism of the occasion, and the night promises to be ideal in point of blackness. Large areas of the city will be lighted only by the ghostly glimmer of grinning jack o' lanterns, and the small-boy-who-isn't-afraid will be a veritable terror to his timid sisters. By the young man and the maiden the night is looked forward to with an engerness which approximates apprehension in its intensity-for they are drawing nearer and nearer the time when fate shall seal them to lives of happiness with each other. or gloom apart.

Even the old folks, those who dwell in the past rather than in the future, are making ready to turn back the hands of time, just for one night, and to join their children and grandchildren in the merrymaking which accompanies all properly celebrated Halloweens. One St. Louis hostess, who wishes to preserve the traditions of the night, has sent out invitations to a "ghost party," which is to be something out of the ordinary. The evening is to be devoted to readings and lectures on spiritualism, hypnotism, mind currents and psychic forces. Supper will be served at 11:30 by candle light, and at the stroke of 12 the candles will be blown out and the room left in total darkness. Then will follow a programme of ghostly surprises, which the hostess has been planning for days, and about which she has main tained absolute secrecy.

In hundreds, perhaps thousands, of households within the city the evening will be spent in apple-bobbing, roasting nuts, tell-ing fortunes and playing old-fashioned es. Among the new diversions considered especially appropriate are fancy-dress parties at which each guest is dressed to ably of the Middle Ages. In the intermission between dances each guest is called upon to tell how Halloween was observed represent some historical character, preferwhen he or she was young. At the close of the dance the fortune of each is told by a paimist.

At parties where dancing is not included in, there are witches' candrons from which answers to questions concerning the future are ladied out, and seers who pretend to read the stars for anxious lads and lassies. Blowing bubbles is also insulged in, the blower of the longest-lived bubble being conceded the backiest in love.

But the old, old customs of ducking for apples, roasting and burning nuts and blowing out candles remain the most popular sports for the night.
